Thank you very much for your thoughtful letter of 28 November in which you so kindly offer your services for a special limited time assignment.

I have looked into the possibilities of taking advantage of your good offer to assist. At the moment, however, it does not appear that we can fully utilize your talents and abilities in the type of assignment you suggest. You can be sure that I will bear your letter in mind and should the occasion arise in which I can take advantage of your availability, I shall be in touch with you promptly.

General Cabell joins me in best wishes,

Sincerely,

John A. McCone
Director

Gentlemen:

Would you be kind enough to forward the attached letter to Mr. McCone in Washington. It is important that it go with his personal mail to his home or to such other address as he may have designated for mail of a personal or confidential nature.

Very truly yours

Enclosure: Letter to Mr. McCone.

MEMORANDUM FOR: Mr. McCone

General Cabell remembers casually as a good officer but not in any way outstanding.

The old OSS files reflect nothing derogatory except for personality clashes with certain personnel.
